Campaign Receipts Total
$2,466,019, Report
Discloses

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Total disbursements of the republican national committee between June 14 and October 18 of this year were placed at $2,741,503.34 in an official statement filed today with the clerk of the house of representatives by Fred W. Upham, treasurer of the national committee. Receipts for the period were placed at $2,466,019.19.

The statement placed the number of contributions at 24,867, and added that only sixteen contributions in excess of $1,000 had been received. These sixteen contributions, it added, aggregated $23,750. The Hamilton Club, Chicago, was named as largest single contributor with $12,000.

This report discounts the charges of Gov. Cox that earlier in the campaign alleged that the republicans were raising a fund of $50,000,000 to buy the presidency. That charge has long since been discounted and today's report shows how baseless were Gov. Cox's charges.

WHAT IS THE REASON?

A careful count of those present in the national guard armory last night showed that approximately eight hundred people heard United States Senator A. A. Jones deliver his defense of the Wilson league of nations. The hall will accommodate 2,000 people. Only about three-fourths of the chairs provided on the main floor were occupied. Only a scattering attendance appeared in the galleries. The address had been widely advertised. There were no conflicting attractions. A republican rally, scheduled for the evening, had been deferred out of courtesy to one of the state's distinguished citizens and in order that none might be deterred from hearing his address.

The fact of the small attendance is not mentioned to detract in any way from what was certainly a masterly presentation of the Wilson side of the solemn referendum on the league of nations; but because it prompts a natural inquiry as to the cause for lack of a general popular turnout.

Only eleven days remain before a national election involving an issue more important than any our nation has faced since slavery was abolished. It involves not only a complete revolution in our foreign policy and relations, but, as many believe, a daring departure from constitutional government as we know it, into unknown paths and perils.

Albuquerque is the largest city in the state. The speaker, in addition to his distinguished position among statesmen of national repute, is the official head of the democratic party in New Mexico; its national committeeman. Sent to Arthur Schlegel, he is regarded as the strongest democrat in the state, in point of influence within his party and control of its destinies. He spoke in a building that is at almost the exact center of a five-mile radius containing 25,000 people, nearly one-half of whom are members of the party he leads. But only 800 people, of all political faiths, turned out to hear him prevent the referendum side the civil war.

What is the reason?

Certainly it is not popular indifference to the league of nations issue, because the speaker of its cause received by the republican state headquarters in this city are eagerly sought by men and women in all parts of the state.

Have the people made up their minds so firmly against the Wilson league of nations that they do not care to hear further argument for it, even from so able a defender as Senator Jones?

Are the people satisfied that in this election the democratic cause is lost and Governor Cox a hopelessly defeated candidate, so that further argument in behalf of the cause he is pledged to uphold is regarded as wasted time?

Is there general indifference locally toward democratic policies and candidates, as a result of local and state issues and campaign conditions?

The message audience that heard Senator Jones' able address last night must be accounted for in one or more of these causes.

In our state and in the nation reliable information shows that except for the democratic presidential candidate Hubbell, democratic speakers in this campaign have been greeted as heretics. Jones was greeted here, by audiences that would be regarded as small in an election campaign involving only local issues, and that in so important a national campaign, are strikingly small.

It was this fact of popular indifference to the democratic side of the national campaign, shown everywhere throughout the country, that first influenced and established the overwhelming betting odds in favor of Senator Harding.

It was taken to mean that the people have made up their minds in favor of a change of national administration. Each week of the campaign has strengthened the evidence. It is the American tendency not to waste time worrying over a lost cause.

CITY FLAGS AT HALF MAST DURING METCALF FUNERAL

Real Estate Offices Close; Services at Home Simple

Albuquerque today made the last of its opportunity to pay a final tribute to William P. Metcalf, one of the city's pioneers and dean of the real estate corps of New Mexico, who died at 1930 o'clock yesterday morning.

Under the instructions from City Manager James N. Gladding and members of the city commission, the flag at the city hall and the one in Robinson park are flying at half mast. The doors of the city library were closed this noon for the rest of the day.

The city's tribute is in memory of the man who wrote the city charter, under which the city commissioners are now operating the affairs of the municipality. The closing of the library came in memory of the man who served as the last president of the old library board, before the city commission took over government of the city.

Mr. Metcalf's appointment as president of the library board came from the mayor. The board was abolished when the city commission was replaced by the charter of Mr. Metcalf's writing.

Real Estate Offices Close

A. J. Martin, president of the real estate bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, announced this morning that all real estate offices would close at 12 o'clock and remain closed during the hour of the funeral.

At the order of Dr. L. S. Peters, president of the Chamber of Commerce, the business of that body was suspended for the hour of the funeral. Among the many floral offerings, that sent by the real estate men was one of the most beautiful. Before the hour of the funeral at 2:30 o'clock various began gathering at the home, 203 South Fourth street. The service was of the regular type usually held by the Episcopal church. The service was conducted by the Right Reverend Frederick H. Howden. It was first planned to have the Rev. Winfred Ziegler conduct the service but the latter could not be in town. This last summer Mr. Metcalf had spent the week ends at his orchard in Tesuque, the deceased always having been fond of outdoor and ranch life. Mr. Metcalf was a splendid horseman and rancher. To the old timers of Albuquerque, Mr. Metcalf was known as a gentle, kindhearted man, who loved to tell and hear stories and himself always able to spin a good yarn no matter what the occasion.

Lover of Horses and Dogs

He was fond of pets, especially dogs and horses and for years had a pet dog which he took with him when going on trips or just about town. Although his political ideas did not agree with those of his closest friends, he was always able to state his side of questions and listen to others without becoming angry. He was considered one of the best chess players in the southwest and when he had any spare moments he loved to sit and play the old fashioned and complex game.

Funeral services at the funeral this afternoon were held by Rev. William R. Walton, E. L. Grose, Clark M. Carr, Dr. Henry Hoff Brown and Dr. J. P. Pearce, all old time chums of Mr. Metcalf. Burial was in Fairview cemetery. Strong Brothers were in charge of arrangements.

BOLD EFFORT TO TRICK WOMEN IS NIPPED IN STATE

Mrs. R. P. Barnes Stops
Cox Propaganda
in State

Mrs. R. P. Barnes of Albuquerque has checked, so far as New Mexico is concerned, a bold effort to trick women voters into voting for Cox, through the use of the name of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and the suffrage organization of which she is the head. The organization is non-partisan.

Mrs. George Tass chairman of the democratic national women's bureau, in Chicago, is leading the movement and is carrying on her propaganda by telegraph. Her telegram, received by Mrs. Barnes yesterday, and Mrs. Barnes' reply, follow:

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 20, 1920.
Mrs. R. P. Barnes,
1001 E. Silver Ave.,
Albuquerque, N. M.

Carrie Chapman Catt, as a non-partisan voter will support Cox to bring America into the league of nations. Mrs. Catt's full statement will appear in Thursday or Friday morning papers. Will you read and call attention of your members. Wire me if you stand with us.

(Signed) Mrs. GEO. TASS,
Women's bureau, democratic national headquarters.

Mrs. Barnes' reply follows:
Mrs. Geo. Tass,
New York

I do not support Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt nor will I support Governor Cox whom I consider lacking both in dignity and ability for the presidential chair. Independent of this I will never favor the Wilson league of nations without important reservations which the democratic party has refused to formulate and refused to accept when formulated by patriotic Americans. The organization Mrs. Catt and I belong to is entirely non-partisan and if your telegram is sanctioned by Mrs. Catt she violates the confidence of its members and if sent without her sanction you violate her confidence and lower her dignity.

MRS. R. P. BARNES.

MRS. WARREN SPEAKS TO GREAT CROWD OF SOCORRO VOTERS

Five Times as Many Out as Were Present to Hear Senator Jones

SOCORRO, N. M., Oct. 22.—Mrs. Adeline Otter Warren, vice chairman of the republican state committee, spoke here last night to a crowd of more than five hundred men and women who filled the court room in the county court house. There were general comments on the contrast between the audience last night and that present Wednesday night when Senator Jones delivered his defense of the league of nations in the same room, to only about 100 people.

Mrs. Warren spoke principally of the league of nations, educational subjects and child welfare work, pointing out the record of the republican party in the latter causes. She was given an ovation on beginning her speech and at its conclusion. She spoke in both English and Spanish.

In an effort to try to check the effectiveness of Mrs. Warren's address democratic propagandists have been spreading vicious misinformation as to the subjects she is discussing. It was generally remarked that her address here last night probably was more dignified and fair in its treatment of facts than that of the United States senator who preceded her.

Young Farmer Slain By Father of Girl He Had Been Annoying

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., Oct. 22.—Ira Hodgson, a young farmer, was shot and killed early today by Thomas Lipton, a retired farmer of Meadville, Mo. Lipton, surrendered to the authorities. Lipton said his daughter, who teaches school near the Hodgson farm, had been receiving insulting anonymous notes deposited in the school house. The father spent last night in the school house and said Hodgson entered the building before daylight this morning and began to write. He shot him. Hodgson is survived by a wife and baby.

MEXICO MINES CLOSING

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 22.—Representatives of companies operating silver mines throughout Mexico conferred with Salvador Alvarado, secretary of the treasury yesterday, discussing means by which the export price of silver might be made more advantageous. They asserted the low price of that metal made the closing down of mines imminent.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK GOOD

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Business prospects are unusually bright, both in the United States and abroad, Elbert H. Gary, head of the United States steel corporation declared in an address before the American Iron & Steel Institute here today.

Dry Again Ask Cox Where He Stands As to Prohibition

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Virgil G. Hinshaw, chairman of the prohibition national committee last night sent another letter to Governor James M. Cox, democratic candidate for president, asking him if he would "go publicly" on record to the effect that you will, if elected president, stand opposed to any increase of the alcoholic content in beverages or any weakening of the prohibition laws now in effect.

The letter also asked if published stories relating to the distribution of liquor at the democratic national convention in San Francisco were true.

Will You Obey Hanna's Demand That You Vote for Hubbell?

In the Morning Journal of Wednesday and Thursday appeared elaborate denials by Max Gutierrez and Severo Sanchez of the assertion of fact that they are Hubbell men and that if elected they will represent Hubbell as the majority of the board of county commissioners.

In the deal between Hanna lieutenants and Frank A. Hubbell it was agreed that in exchange for such votes as Hubbell could deliver to Hanna, Hubbell should have the right to select candidates on the Hanna-Hubbell ticket whose election would give Hubbell control of the county government.

Hubbell knows that control of the county commission is the key to control of county government. The assessor is important as a part of the machinery of the "assessment cinch." The county clerk is important to Hubbell because that office comes into direct contact with all the people and handles distribution of county funds and certification of accounts for payment. The probate judge is important in a Hubbell county machine because in handling the estates up for probate a vast amount of patronage is available for distribution in matters of appraisal, administration and execution of wills. The office, as it can be used by a political boss, has enormous influence.

But none of these controlled offices are important without the control of the county commission, which handles all funds and all appointments. The only thing more valuable to Hubbell would be control of the courts.

For these candidacies for the county commission Hubbell picked the two men, out of all his following, on whose obedience he could most depend. In all his record as a boss he has never picked a candidate whom he could not control. In this case he picked with special care, accurate knowledge and thorough test. Severo Sanchez and Max Gutierrez went onto the Hanna-Hubbell ticket only because they have always been, are now and will remain subject to Hubbell's orders. Otherwise they would not be on the ticket.

The record shows that when Alfred Grunsfeld and the late Manuel Springer finally won election as county commissioners, in the struggle that took the county government out of Hubbell's hands, Severo Sanchez was elected as the third member of the commission, and as a Hubbell candidate. During his service on the commission he always stood for the things Hubbell wanted. He helped to keep Hubbell alive as an influence in county politics. He has never deviated from his obedience to the Hubbell mandate, even when the Hubbell machine has been at its worst state of wreckage. All of the denials the Morning Journal can print cannot change the public record with which a large majority of Bernalillo county citizens are familiar.

Max Gutierrez owes his presence on the present county commission to Hubbell. He was brought down to the county convention two years ago as a candidate for sheriff. Hubbell brought him. The exact, specific details are available. With Hubbell's help he brought enough strength into the convention to force a compromise, and his nomination for the county commission. Every delegate to the convention mentioned knows the facts to be as stated. Everyone acquainted with the situation at that time knows the facts to be as stated. No defense of Gutierrez in the Morning Journal can change the record or mislead the people. Too many people know the record. The instant there was a chance to serve Hubbell in election strategy and the selection of election officers, Gutierrez took orders from the boss. The record is there to prove it.

JUDGE MECHEM AND SENATOR FALL DRAW BIG CROWD AT CARRIZOZO; 150 TURNED AWAY AT MEETING

CARRIZOZO, N. M., Oct. 22.—Record crowds continue to turn out to hear Judge Merritt O. Mechem and Senator A. B. Fall. The largest hall in this town was filled last night with 200 persons and more than 150 were turned away.

The night meeting followed a day tour through the county at which Judge Mechem and Senator Fall addressed five meetings. Everywhere the people listened intently to Senator Fall's discussion of the league of nations, this seeming to be one of the principal things on which they desire enlightenment.

In the morning here last night the senator dwelt at length on the league and his appeals to the voters to pre-

Mrs. Mabel C. Kenyon Guilty of Manslaughter

NORWICH, Conn., Oct. 22.—Mrs. Mabel C. Kenyon, today was found guilty of manslaughter in killing of Dr. Herbert Tetlow.

Mrs. Kenyon was sentenced to serve from ten to fifteen years in prison.

Dr. Tetlow, although a physician, devoted himself to horticulture. He had been on intimate terms with Mrs. Kenyon, who had been thrice married. The evidence showed.

Dr. Tetlow was shot June 11 in his home. Mrs. Kenyon was there at the time but at the trial the defense sought to show he had killed himself because of love for her.

Mrs. Kenyon's husband and children were at her side during the trial.

King of Greece Said To Be Victim of Plot In Bite by Monkey

ROME, Oct. 22.—Injuries inflicted upon King Alexander by a monkey were the result of a plot to assassinate the young monarch, according to Dr. Georges Bernard Vidal, of Paris, who has been attending the king.

"The monkey was suffering from rabies," Vidal said, "it had been artificially inoculated," he said.

MASSWINEY DELIRIOUS

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Tarence MacSwiney, lord mayor of Cork, was delirious this morning and prison authorities continued to force food into his mouth, in spite of his protests, according to a bulletin issued by the Irish Self-Determination league.

BAKERS IN A WAR WITH COMPTROLLER

Williams Defies Them
After They Denounce
His Attacks

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Retorting his charges that New York bakers are demanding "extraneous interest rates," Comptroller of the Currency Williams in a formal statement today declared that instead of criticism of his charges, "the plainly indisputable proper course is change of policy and reformation of abuses which have come into ineffectuality."

The comptroller's statement was issued coincidentally with adoption of a resolution by the American Bakers Association condemning what it termed "dangerous attacks" on the credit system of the country. "Considering it was his duty to report such 'abuses' as the union," Williams said, "the policy is not the question and intentions of the officials, but whether they are there."

"My strong faith is that the bankers of the country will find and apply cure for the evil that has been shown," he added.

Discussing by the bankers of criticism leveled recently at certain New York bakers by Williams culminated today in the adoption of a report of the association's resolutions committee condemning "dangerous attacks" by unnamed individuals on the credit structure of the country.

Immediately upon motion by Francis A. Simon, chairman of the committee for adoption of the report, D. P. Guinan, of McMahon City, Pa., was recognized and proceeded to defend Mr. Williams. Describing him as "the most faithful and efficient comptroller of the currency who has been in office since the organization of government," this declaration was greeted with cheers from several sections of the convention hall.

J. M. Kehoe, of Mayville, Ky., replying to Mr. Guinan, declared the convention could not afford "to have such charges cast into the face of us all and not state its views in answer thereto." Mr. Kehoe asserted if any changes were to be made in the resolutions "let's make those stronger which refer to Williams."

LEAGUE IS INSPIRED BY GOD, COX SAYS

Classes It With the Declaration of Independence

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 22.—A one day campaign in New Jersey was opened here today by Governor James M. Cox of Ohio, with a noon theater meeting at which the democratic presidential candidate asked a "mandate" of bachelors to "overturn the greatest conspiracy in all the ages." This he said, was against world peace, proposed under the league of nations.

The league, Governor Cox said, was "an inspired by God, as the declaration of independence itself."

Like other recent audiences of Governor Cox, his Trenton crowd today heard the name of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, when the speaker repeated his charges of conspiracy by means of the "grand roll."

Governor Cox named Senators Brandegee, of Connecticut, and Moses of New Hampshire, Snoot of Utah and Watson of Indiana, as signers of the "grand roll," who would, he predicted, "stay home," as a result of the election.

"And Senator Harding, he'll stay home, too, I believe," the governor added, and the crowd laughed and cheered.

When a baby's crying competed with the governor's voice, he said to the mother:

"That baby's crying don't bother me at all. I want to hear a baby I grow stronger in this fight for it's a fight for the babies of future generations, to save them from the horrors of war."

Governor Cox was introduced by Governor Edwards as "the man who makes the wobbler wobble."
